How many words can you make out if the word "Resolution?"

Choose a symbol of winter. Draw a picture of your symbol and write a few sentences describing your symbol.

Start a reading versus screen time chart. Record the amount of time spent each day on reading and screen time. Keep track for a week. If reading time is greater than screen time than you can earn a treat. Show Mrs. Kelley or Mrs. Marsh for a treat. We haven't had anyone complete this challenge yet! Will you be the first person?

Free Space:
GO outside and play. Our bodies need exercise to help us focus.

Spend time reading nonfiction and fiction books. Branch out and try different genres. What is your favorite?

Read, Read, Read! It is never a bad idea!

Complete "It's Alarming" on the back of this sheet.

Research penguins or another animal that likes the cold. What is the most interesting thing that you learned?

These are some fun, optional, remote Friday activities for the month of January. Please enjoy working on these activities throughout the month if you have some extra time. Mrs. Kelley and Mrs. Marsh look forward to seeing what you chose to do at the end of the month. It doesn't matter if you complete 1 activity or all 9 activities.

It's Alarming

Invent a device that will wake you up in the morning, using any (or all) of the following materials and one additional item of your choosing (if necessary). Draw and describe your invention.
